DATED THIS THE 12TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 2006.

JUDGMENT

Ramachandran, J.

An order dated 30.9.2006 passed by the Family Court in a custody application, a copy of which is on record as Ext.P3, is under challenge. For obvious reasons which were disclosed, the Family Court has directed that the mother of the child should reach the school premises only after 15 minutes of the time scheduled for handing over of the child.

2. It is evident that the attempt was to ensure that no scene is created in the school in respect of handing over and taking over possession on the respective dates. Even if the parents quarrel and fight, that need not be in the presence of other children. Learned counsel for the petitioner then submits that in the matter of medication, it may create difficulties. However, we do not think at this point of time, any change at the hands of this court is warranted. If the petitioner finds that there is real difficulties faced by her in obeying the orders passed, it may be open for her to approach the Family Court with appropriate petitions , highlighting a specific impediment.

With the above observation, the writ petition is dismissed.
